FIRST REGATTAS WILL BE SAILED THIS WEEK

Atlantic and Seawanhaka Yacht Clubs Open Season Next Saturday.

P. W. ROUSS'S NEW YACHT

Changes in Larchmont Courses Indian Harbor's Opening and Schedule.

Next Saturday will mark the opening of the yacht racing season. On the Sound the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club has announced races and on Gravesend Bay the Atlantic Yacht Club will hold a regatta. It will be the beginning of a season which promises to be long and full of interest. Usually when Decoration Day comes toward the end of the week, as it does this year, the first of the season races are sailed on that day, but this year the yearthmy achtsmen seemed anxious to race and so races were scheduled earlier. There will be some formal openings too next Saturday, after which will come Decoration Day with many more openings and many more regatlas. On the Sound the championship races will begin with Decoration Day in the regatla of the Harlem Yacht Club, but down the bay these races will not start until two weeks later.

The Atlantic Yacht Club will open the season with a special regatta on May 25 First there will be a race for schooners saling in one class. N and above, all saling in one class. This race will be started off Sea Gate at 10 clock, the warning signal being made ten minutes earlier. The course will be first to the West Bank light, leaving it on the port hand, then to the Southwest Spit, leaving then to port and then to the bell buoy off the point of the Saturday. September 21 Race for the Corin-thian cup for yachts of 31 feet rating and under.

Some changes are to be made in the courses of the Larchmont Yacht Club. During the winter the regatta committee has been in communication with the principal racing owners of the Long Island Sound district to ask for opinions regarding the turning of the southwest stake boat of the regular courses. In courses that have the regular courses. In courses that have the sailed twice over, it has been found that the large sloops and schooners interfere with the smaller classes and that in the turn the little yachts are often in the Some changes are to be made in the the turn the little yachts are often in the at the southwest mark, which is directly committee the race of the club, and send the large vachts around one and the smaller divisions around the other. The committee now announces that this plan will be tried this year. A mark boat will be placed about one hundred yards northeast by east of the present southwest stake boat and this new mark will be turned by yachts in class N and above. The smaller boats will turn the old mark as in former seasons. It is thought that the change will be a great improvement to the racing at the big Long Island Sound club this summer.

The Larchmont Yacht Club intends to strictly enforce the rule recently adopted by the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound regarding the placing of racing numbers on the sails of competing yachts I nder no consideration will the regatts committee time any yacht that violates this rule. The new rule states not only where the number shall be placed, but designates also its size and style. As the Larchmont Yacht Club has more yachts in its regatts that nay other Sound organization, it is plainly seen why the rule must be obeyed. Commodore Richards is now cruising at Hampton Roads on his flasship Carola.
